Emily Brinkman, Paul Garcia, and Matt Lahana co-present View from the Other Side: Insights into Working with the Government.

The government is a large, opaque entity that can at times be very confusing – we can help! This presentation will address practical insights from three former government attorneys who will discuss the differences between working for the government versus the private sector, including the motivations, considerations and realities that arise throughout the investigation, regulatory, and litigation processes. Attendees will come away with a better understanding of the inner workings of government agencies — knowledge you can use to benefit your clients.
