The Coalition for Health AI (CHAI), an organization with the mission of advancing responsible AI and promoting best practices, released its Transparency Report, analyzing over 250 state bills related to transparency in health AI. The report reviews common trends and themes across state policymaking as a resource to inform future legislation. The report notes that in the absence of federal legislation, 46 states have stepped up to introduce health AI transparency bill in the legislature. Themes examined include health care denials, safety and bias mitigation, human oversight, and the shift toward lifecycle governance.
