

Eric Fish on Forbes TV: Inside the Lawsuit Over ChatGPT's Near-Fatal Medical Advice

News

07.24.26

Eric Fish joined Brittany Lewis on Forbes TV for the segment “Pastor Sues OpenAI, Claims ChatGPT’s Medical Advice Almost Killed Him—How Strong Is the Case?” Watch it here or listen here.

OpenAI and its CEO, Sam Altman, were sued by a Florida pastor who accused the company’s chatbot, ChatGPT, of giving him “personalized and inaccurate medical advice” that “brought him to the brink of death.” According to the lawsuit, the 55-year-old man listened to health advice from ChatGPT, which he claims led him to delay seeking medical attention. ChatGPT allegedly said his symptoms were not likely very dangerous, but the pain he felt was actually the beginning of a pulmonary embolism that almost took his life.

RELATED CAPABILITIES

Digital Health

PROFESSIONAL

ERIC M. FISH
Partner
Washington, D.C.