

HLB San Diego Gives Back to Kids Battling Cancer

Our San Diego office recently came together to support the Emilio Nares Foundation \(ENF\), a local nonprofit dedicated to helping families navigate their child's journey with cancer and other life-threatening illnesses.

The team assembled snack bags for ENF's Emilio's Snack Bags program, which provides free, hospital-approved snacks to children in oncology units who have been fasting ahead of chemotherapy. Each bag is thoughtfully planned in collaboration with the hospital's nutritionist, so kids receive the vital nutrients and a small moment of comfort they need during treatment.

"Knowing that a child going through chemo will open one of these bags and feel a little more cared for, well, that's what made this so meaningful. We're grateful to ENF for the work they do every day." – Jennifer Turgeon, Director of Marketing & Business Development.

"Giving back to the communities where we live and work is a priority for HLB. I'm proud of our San Diego team for stepping up for local families facing some of life's hardest moments." – Mark Johnson, Managing Partner of HLB San Diego.
